Chronology of Jerome Myers

- 1867 Born Petersburg, Virginia on March 20.
- 1876 Family moved to Philadelphia.
- 1879 Left school to work in a cork factory to help the family. Myers was one of five children. Their father was one of the “Forty-niners”, away from home for long periods.
- 1880 Went to work as office boy in a law office where, in the library, he read the Greeks in translation.
- 1881 Moved with the family to Baltimore, Maryland. Worked at various jobs, sign painting, etc. and posed as a model at the Baltimore Academy.
- 1886 Moved to New York City, and began to work full time as a scene painter under the influence of his brother Harry, who was interested in show business. Painted the interiors of several New York theaters.
- 1887 Began art studies at Cooper Union at night after work. Painted his first New York picture.
- 1888 Began serious art study at the Art Students League. Began his direct contact with city life by going around sketching life as he saw it.
- 1889 Gave up scene painting and started to free lance with the Moss Engraving Company. Spent more time studying at Cooper Union and at the Art Students League under George DeForest Brush.
- 1891 Moved to a studio on 32nd near Broadway. Painted a portrait of his mother.
- 1893 Sold a painting for the first time. While making an oil sketch of the Essex Canal near Jersey City, a woman from a nearby houseboat watched him work. When the picture was completed, she asked him if he would see it to her for two dollars – a memorable day for the young artist.
- 1894 Moved into the old University Building on Washington Square.
- 1895 Mother died. Myers found work in the art department of the Tribune.

- 1896 With funds saved from the Tribune job, Myers went to France for a few months. Opened his first studio on his return at 232 West 14th Street, where he lived for about five years. At this time he was doing mainly East Side scenes and continued to use the medium of pencil or pastel.
- 1900 William Macbeth encouraged Myers to paint in oil, and began to show a few of his paintings at the Macbeth Gallery.
- 1902 Moved from 14th to West 50th Street and began a prolific period of painting, working from the many drawings he had sketched from life over the past ten years.
- 1903 Began exhibiting in group exhibitions at the Macbeth Gallery.
- 1904 Exhibited at the Society of American Artists, the Municipal Art Society, at the National Arts Club, the Lotus Club and the Colonial Club. Won the bronze medal at the Universal Exposition in St. Louis for "Night Concert." Met Ethel Klinck, Assistant Director of the Chase School (William Merritt Chase) who was later to become his wife.
- 1905 Myers and Ethel Klinck were married in a small church ceremony in October, and began their married life in a studio on 59th Street.
- 1906 A daughter, Virginia, was born and the family moved to a studio on West 23rd Street across from John Sloan.
- 1908 The first one-man show was held at the Macbeth Gallery from January 2 through January 18. He also exhibited in group shows at the Art Institute of Chicago, National Academy and the Print Gallery in New York.
- 1909 A bad financial year caused Myers to move to a one-room studio on the lower west side. Myers refused to paint "pretty ladies" as he had been counseled to do.
- 1910 Exhibited in the Exhibition of Independent Artists. A sale of a painting permitted a move to a new studio at 7 West 42nd Street.
- 1911 Exhibited with Walt Kuhn and Elmer MacRae at the Madison Gallery in an exhibition called "The Pastellists." Several others were invited to exhibit and on December 14, in a postmortem of the exhibit, the embryo idea of the Armory Show was born. Henry Fitch Taylor, Elmer MacRae, Walt Kuhn and Myers later, on December 19, met with the others in a more formal meeting where minutes were taken and the plans for what resulted in the Armory Show were begun.
- 1912 The Metropolitan Museum of Art bought Myers painting, "The Mission Tent." This sale made it possible for the Myers family to move into the studio in the "new" Carnegie Hall building.

- 1913 Myers worked actively in the formation of the Armory Show and both he and Mrs. Myers exhibited work in that show. At the same time he was holding art classes at the Finch School.
- 1914 Myers took his family to Europe and stayed in both London and Paris. Left Paris the night before war was declared and the story of their adventures in documented in drawings and an article, "The Innocent Bystander," published in the Edison Monthly.
- 1915 Several articles were written for the Edison Monthly on European and war experiences illustrated by his own drawings. Began to etch and produced about twenty plates this year. Continued to exhibit actively. Rented a house in Carmel, New York.
- 1916 Began lifelong friendship with Arthur F. Egner, Newark, New Jersey attorney, a collector of American Contemporary Art. Also began to build a cottage at Carmel. Ethel Myers began to design dresses and continued in this manner to supplement the family income for many years.
- 1917 Wrote a magazine series, "Confidences of an Errant Artist" for Arts and Decoration. Both Miss Julia Peck and Duncan Phillips purchased several pictures.
- 1919 Exhibited "Summer Night" in the Exhibition of Paintings and Sculpture by American Artists at Luxembourg Museum in Paris. Won the Clarke Prize at the National Academy. Elected as associate member of the National Academy.
- 1920 Exhibited at the National Academy, Kraushaar Galleries and at the Society of American Painters, Sculptors and Gravers of which he was a member.
- 1921 The Memorial Museum in Rochester purchased "Italian Procession."
- 1923 One-man exhibition at the Rehn Gallery.
- 1926 Exhibited at the New Society of Artists, Chicago Art Institute. Received the Clarke Prize for "Evening."
- 1927 Three pictures by Myers were sold from the John Quinn Collection at the sale of that collection at the American Art Galleries.
- 1928 Exhibited at Babcock Gallery, Brooklyn Museum, Grand Central Art Gallery and the National Academy.
- 1929 Elected a full member of the National Academy.
- 1931 Won the second Altman Prize, Carnegie Institute, for "Street Shrine."
- 1934 Grandson Barry E. Downes born March 24.
- 1936 Exhibited at the Carnegie Institute and won the Carnegie Prize.

1939 Won second Altman Prize.

1938 Isidor medal.

1940 Wrote autobiography, Artist in Manhattan, published by the American Artists Group. Died on June 29 in his Carnegie studio, after an injury sustained from a fall.
